4. Description of the initiative
    a. Please provide a brief summary of the initiative (no more than 75 words):

    > GDPR Awareness raising conference and workshop
    > In January 2018 the DPC hosted a landmark international conference on 'Delivering Accountability under the GDPR'.
    > This free and practical hands-on event – which was run in conjunction with Centre for Information Policy Leadership(CIPL) - highlighted and demonstrated accountability in practice, through interactive discussions and presentations for almost 500 attendees from SMEs and the Public Sector, led by leading global privacy specialists and professionals.
    > The slides and presentations materials from the Conference were published online as a permanent learning resource to be accessed by any organisation free of charge.

    b. Please provide a full description of the initiative (no more than 350 words):

    > The Conference featured the following sessions:
    > Session I: How can Controllers and Processors Build Accountability under the GDPR: Documentation & Demonstration
    > This session practically demonstrated how controllers and processors of all sizes are delivering and demonstrating accountability, and documenting data processing.

•What is the role of the GDPR's documentation requirements for data processing? How does recordkeeping look in practice? How should tagging and recordkeeping regarding sensitive data be handled?
•How can organisations demonstrate accountability internally and externally?

Facebook Exercise I: Language Matters

Delegates discussed & amended a sample "terms and conditions".

Session II: Risk Management and Data Protection Impact Assessments (Part I) and Case Studies on Privacy by Design (Part II)

In Part I, discussion leads demonstrated risk assessments, DPIAs and legitimate interest balancing tests.
•How can organisations determine whether a processing operation presents a risk or high risk to individuals requiring a DPIA under the GDPR?

In Part II, discussion leads demonstrated privacy-by-design examples, including an intelligent personal assistant (Siri).
•What are the steps and challenges in designing data protection into a product or service?

Session III: Tabletop: Preparing for and Managing Security Breaches

This tabletop demonstration discussed how to prepare policies and procedures and handle a data breach and notification to individuals and the DPA.
•What is the role of data security in preventing breaches?
•How can organisations prepare for the event of a breach?
•What are best practices for responding to a breach and for breach notification?

Facebook Exercise II: Peer Review

Delegates reviewed current notices that appear on mobile apps in order to discuss & evaluate transparency.

Session IV: Transparency, Individual Rights and Complaint Handling

This session provided practical examples on implementing key individual rights under the GDPR.
•What is transparency under the GDPR and how can information be provided to individuals in different contexts in clear, concise and innovative ways?
•What are best practices for responding to individuals requesting the rights of access, rectification, objection, erasure, blocking and data portability?
•How can organisations comply with the right not to be subject to automated decision-making?
•How should an accountable organization respond to complaints?

c. Please explain why you think the initiative deserves to be recognised by an award (no more than 200 words)

This was a landmark international conference that allowed almost 500 delegates from all sectors to benefit from the experience and expertise of leading global privacy specialists, including senior representatives from the DPC, the Center for Information Policy Leadership, Apple, Facebook, Mastercard Worldwide, HP, Accenture, Google, and Arthur Cox, among others.

The conference was free-of-charge, and presentation materials were made published online as a permanent freely available resource.

Delegates benefitted from practical, hands-on workshops and exercises, and had the opportunity to shape the conversation by submitting questions through their phones directly onto the conference screen.

The DPC undertook this initiative in order to create a valuable learning event for those organisations that were most anxious about the introduction of the GDPR – SMEs and public sector organisations. The DPC is proud to have provided a unique event that allowed these organisations to gain expert, yet practical, training and insight from leading global experts.

The feedback the DPC received following this conference was overwhelmingly positive, and we expect to organise similar events in the future.
