On January 28, 2019 – Data Protection Day, the Commissioner’s Office unveiled for the public an initiative entitled “Play and Learn – Happy Onlife”. In co-operation and co-ordination with the Education Directorate of Tirana, this game intended for the group age 8-14, was promoted at primary education schools. An official event was held at “Kosova” primary school, gathering pupils, teachers (who were previously introduced with this initiative) and invited guests.

The event was addressed by representatives of the Assembly of Albania, Council of Europe, OSCE Presence, EU Delegation, and the IDP Commissioner’s Office. Groups of pupils from each school participating in this initiative (“Kosova”, “E Kuqe”, “Jeronim de Rada”, “Edith Durham”, “Emin Duraku” and “Dora D’Istria”) played the game in order to demonstrate it.

The game was developed in 2015 by the European Union Joint Research Centre. Happy Onlife is a toolkit, including a game, for children, parents and teachers, aimed at raising awareness of the risks and opportunities of internet and promoting the best online practices. The game and toolkit are proposed as work in progress to be extended with the contributions of all stakeholders applying innovative research methods for formal, informal and participatory education in the use of digital technologies with children aged between 8 and 14.

- c. Please explain why you think the initiative deserves to be recognised by an award (no more than 200 words):

Over the last 3-4 years, the Commissioner’s Office has set among its priorities the awareness-raising initiatives on protection of personal data, with particular focus on children and teenagers. The massive use of new technologies by these age groups brings about concrete and elevated risks to privacy and to the effective protection of personal data. The Commissioner’s Office closely co-operates with the Ministry of Education, Youth and Sports in addressing these issues, while it organizes on regular basis training events involving interested parties and stakeholders.
